Manuscript Preparation Guidelines

Page 1 – Title Page:

Include the title of the article ( 14 font size , Bold and Caps), names of the authors , and their institutional affiliations only..

Page 2 – Abstract and Keywords:

Begin with an abstract of approximately 200–400 words, clearly summarizing the content of the article. Follow the abstract with a list of keywords relevant to the work.

Introduction

The introduction should clearly outline the background and importance of the study. It must reference current and relevant literature, particularly the most recent publications, to justify the need for the research. Emphasis should be placed on identifying knowledge gaps the study aims to fill.

Materials and Methods

This section should provide concise yet comprehensive details of the materials, instruments, and methodologies used in the study. All analytical, experimental, and statistical procedures must be described with clarity and precision, ensuring that other researchers can replicate the study without ambiguity. Standard protocols should be referenced, and any modifications must be clearly specified.

Results

Results should be presented in a logical sequence, using tables and figures where appropriate. Data presented in tables should not be duplicated in figures, and vice versa. Avoid extensive repetition of numerical data in the text. Summaries of the key findings should be provided without unnecessary elaboration.

Discussion

The discussion should interpret the findings with direct reference to the presented tables and figures. It should critically evaluate the results in the context of previously published literature, highlighting the study's contributions to the field.

Acknowledgements

(If applicable) This section should briefly acknowledge any individuals, institutions, or funding bodies that contributed to the research but did not meet authorship criteria.
